McFarland Co Inc, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. The 11th North Carolina Infantry in the Civil War is the unforgettable story of civilian-soldiers and their families during the American Civil War. This narrative follows a regiment of Carolinians from their mustering-in ceremony in 1861, to the war's final moments of surrender at Appomattox. A multitude of Tar Heels tell their stories through the use of over 1,500 quotes, enabling us to hear what they saw, experienced, and felt. The 11th North Carolina Infantry in the Civil War tracks these Carolinians and follows them as they changed from exhilarated volunteers to battle-hardened veterans. They eagerly rushed to join the Bethel Regiment with exuberance for battle, summed up by their colonel, who shouted at the Yankees, You dogs, you missed me! Later, once the grim realities set in, the Tar Heels stood solidly beside their comrades. One rifleman expressed this shared sentiment, writing; Open ground and enemy works, it made the men quiet, but they did not flinch. Eventually though, as the war took its horrible toll, a weary veteran wrote, I wonder--when and if I return home--will I be able to fit in? The 11th North Carolina Infantry in the Civil War is an intensely personal account based upon the Carolinians letters, journals, memoirs, official reports, personnel records, and family histories. It is a powerful account of courage and sacrifice.
